2023 年北京论坛国际关系分论坛 “不确定时代的国际合作与全球治理” 会议议程

会议背景

当前，世界之变、世纪之变和历史之变正以前所未有的方式展开，全球化、技术变革、环境风险和地缘政治失稳让世界进入深度不确定性的时代。今天的世界面临着复杂而相互关联的挑战，这些多维度多方面的挑战，亟需全球集体行动来加以应对。与此同时，深度不确定性意味着各类行为体都必须基于不完整或相互矛盾的信息做出决策。这些复杂挑战和深刻变化超出了特定的国家或地区、让全球的安全和发展前所未有地结为一体，因此国际合作和全球治理至关重要，否则将难以实现减少冲突和促进可持续发展的共同目标。

然而，不确定性从来都是国际合作和有效全球治理的主要障碍之一。虽然不确定性可以创造紧迫感、为各国合作提供共同动机，但它也可能导致迟疑不决、缺乏信任和协调困难。此外，基于证据的全球治理必须更多地将不确定性考虑在内，在根据可用证据做出决策的同时，承认其局限性和潜在风险。换句话说，全球治理必须在确定性需求和不确定性现实之间取得艰难的平衡。

促进国际合作和全球治理以应对不确定性，亟需解决以下关键性问题：如何在面对不确定性和分歧时促进国家之间的信任和合作？如何加强国际组织和机构的能力，以支持面对不确定性的合作和治理？国际合作和全球治理中如何在有限或相互矛盾的证据下达成尊重科学和政治现实的共识？如何在国际合作和全球决策的决策和进程中促进创新和创意，以确保我们能够适应和应对不断变化的情况和风险？如何在公正和可持续的方式下平衡个人、社区和国家层次上不同利益相关者的需求和利益？如何建立地区、国家和全球的适应性和韧性机制，以确保我们能够更好地应对未来的危机和不确定性？等等。

本分论坛由北京论坛与北京大学国际关系学院共同举办，旨在通过汇聚相关领域世界知名学者的见解和专业知识来探讨以上关键问题。

诚挚欢迎广大师生积极参与！

International Cooperation and Global Governance in the Era of Uncertainty Beijing Forum 2023 Agenda

Background

Currently the changes of the world, the century and the history are being unfolded in an unprecedented way. We have entered an era of deep uncertainty mainly driven by globalization, technological change, environmental risks, and geopolitical instability. Our world today is faced with complex and interconnected challenges that are multifaceted and require significant collective action from the global community to address. Deep uncertainty also means that public and private actors must make decisions based on incomplete or conflicting information. In the era of uncertainty, international cooperation and global governance are critical in addressing the complex challenges which are not confined to any particular country or region, and therefore require collective action from the global community. Without effective cooperation, it would be difficult to achieve shared goals, reduce conflicts, and promote sustainable development.

However, uncertainty has long been identified as one of the major obstacles to international cooperation and effective global governance. While uncertainty can create a sense of urgency and provide a shared incentive for countries to cooperate, it can also lead to hesitation, mistrust, and a lack of coordination among countries. Also, evidence-based global governance must take into account uncertainty and make decisions based on the best available evidence, while acknowledging the limitations and potential risks. In other words, global governance must balance the need for certainty with the reality of uncertainty.

In order to address uncertainty and promote global governance through international cooperation, there is an urgent need to address the following key issues: how can trust and cooperation be fostered between nations in the face of uncertainty and disagreement? How can the capacity of international organizations and institutions be strengthened to support cooperation and governance in the face of uncertainty? How can consensus be reached on respecting science and political reality in the face of limited or conflicting evidence in international cooperation and global governance? How can innovation and creativity be promoted in the decision-making and processes of international cooperation and global decision-making to ensure that we can adapt and respond to ever-changing situations and risks? How can the needs and interests of different stakeholders at the individual, community, and national levels be balanced in a fair and sustainable manner? How can adaptive and resilient mechanisms be established at the local, national, and global levels to ensure that we can better respond to future crises and uncertainties, and so on.

This forum aims to tackle these questions by gathering insights and expertise from world-renowned scholars in relevant fields.
